Zenith-Stromberg Carburetors

Adjustment

by Bill Unger, Newsletter Editor

Preparation

pre warm engine

detach crankcase breather hose

remove air cleaner plenum and mounting plate (1/2")

leave air cleaner horns attached to carb bodies

remove dashpot piston dampers

remove vacuum balancer hose between carbs and cap closed disconnect 1° throttle rod clip and detach rod from throttle spindle loosen one of the 1° throttle spindle clamps so that carbs operate independently (1/4" socket)

disconnect 2° throttle rod clips at each carb and detach rods from throttle spindle pull 2° rods forward and tape to manifold to keep full open

fully close idle trim screws (full richness)

Adjust Choke Cables

unclip choke cable clamps

assure full closure of choke cam

loosen fast idle lock nut and screw in fast idle screw to fully clear choke cam

re clamp cables

assure that choke cables work simultaneously and fully

Check Temperature Compensators

remove cover screws

check for free movement by lifting plug from seat, snap back freely adjust nut until valve just seats and no more

Check Dashpot Pistons Free Travel

check for free movement of pistons by lifting w/ finger, let drop and click

check needle bias towards throttle plates

add 5W20 oil to within 1/4" of top of piston rod tube

Check Carb Body Ventilation Holes

check seals to assure no obstruction of vent holes

Check 1° & 2° Throttle Spindle End Seals

check for cracks or leaks (spray ends with WD40 and note any engine speed change)

Balance Airflow and Adjust Throttle Idle Speed

unscrew throttle stop screws until completely closed screw in stop screws until just contacting throttle spindle stops screw in 1½ turns to open throttles start engine and warm to normal align synchronizing tool on air horn to assure air opening not blocked match air flow of each carb by adjusting throttle stop screws retighten 1° throttle spindle clamp so that carburetor throttles work together

screw in or out each throttle stop screw equally to set engine idle speed to 750 rpm

Reattach Linkages

turn engine off
reattach 1° throttle rod and clip to throttle spindle assure no binding of throttle linkage movement adjust throttle rods if needed to eliminate any premature opening of throttle reattach 2° throttle rods and clips to throttle spindle reconnect vacuum balancer hose between carbs reinstall dashpot piston dampers

Adjust Idle Mixture Richness

restart engine

separately lift each piston within the carburetor opening about ¼":

- if the engine speed increases and continues faster, then screw idle trim screw out to reduce mixture richness
- if the engine speed decreases, then screw idle trim screw in to increase mixture richness (closed = full richness)
- if the engine speed momentarily increases and returns, then mixture is correct
- exhaust should be regular and even sounding:
 - if irregular, splashy misfiring, colorless exhaust, then mixture is too weak
 - if rhythmic, regular misfiring, black sooty exhaust, then mixture is too rich
- readjust idle speed to 750 rpm if necessary by screwing in or out each throttle stop screw equally to set engine idle speed to 750 rpm

Adjust Fast Idle Speed

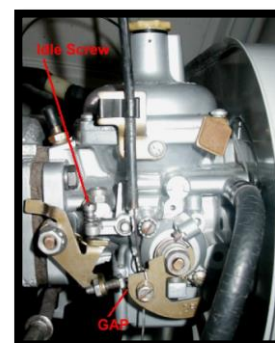

screw out fast idle screw to about 1/16" (0.067") clearance of choke cam tighten fast idle screw lock nut set choke limiting cam spindle by turning screw so that slot is aligned

LIFE OF A SONG GREEN ONIONS

On a sleepy Sunday afternoon in Memphis in 1962, four jobbing musicians rolled into Stax studio to record a jingle for a health tonic. The men formed an unusual ensemble for that time and place: a mix of black and white players, including a classically trained 17-year-old high school student, Booker T Jones, at the keyboard.

When the jingle's vocalist (rockabilly pioneer Billy Lee Riley) failed to materialise, the musicians began jamming a 12-bar blues. Stax's co-founder Jim Stewart pricked up his ears. He heard a single – “Behave Yourself” – in the groove they’d found. But to release it, the band would need a name – and a B-side.

The name came easy: Booker T was clearly a star and they had all been impressed by the British MG sports car the studio engineer had parked outside. (Later they’d have to pretend that the “MG” in Booker T & the MG’s stood for “Memphis Group” after British Leyland made it clear it didn’t want its brand associated with R&B music.) But they were stumped for a B-side until the group’s guitarist, Steve Cropper, recalled a riff that Jones had played for him two weeks earlier. Jones had honed that riff on a school piano, inspired by the music theory he was studying at the time. In his 2019 memoir, Time Is Tight, he recalls wondering: “What if the bottom bass note went up while the top note of the triad went down, like in the Bach fugues and cantatas?” The quirky 12/8 time signature allowed him to coil a 5/4 waltz time within a steady 4/4 pulse.

Cropper punctuated the cool groove with fiery guitar flicks. Drummer Al Jackson and bassist Lewie Steinberg (later replaced by Donald “Duck” Dunn) kept their parts classically uncluttered. They recorded the track in one take.

“Took 15-20 minutes. Tops,” Cropper told Uncut magazine in 2017. Sensing that they might have made a dance hit, the guitarist took the disc to a DJ at a local R&B station who liked it so much he played it four times in a row. “The phones lit up,” said Cropper.

They needed a name for the track. Jones recalls: “Lewie was saying it was so funky it stinks. Al said, ‘It stinks like green onions.’”

Reissued as an A-side in August 1962, “Green Onions” flew to number three on the Billboard Hot 100 and became the title track of Booker T & the MG’s’ debut album. Dozens of covers followed, among them a muzaky 1963 version on The Surfaris’ album Wipe Out. Jones’s groove was more powerfully (if cheekily) repurposed as the bed for Sonny Boy Williamson’s blues single “Help Me”, with Williamson’s heartbroken harmonica taking the part of Cropper’s guitar.

Count Basie gave it a genial big band treatment in 1967; two years later synth pioneer Dick Hyman recorded an electronic version that sounds as though it was made by stoned creatures from the TV animation The Clangers.

In 1978 Cropper joined the Blues

Brothers, the Saturday Night Live sketch-band fronted by actors Dan Ackroyd and John Belushi. The band’s snappy cover of “Green Onions” appears on their 1980 album Made in America. The track finally broke the top 10 in the UK in 1979 after it was featured on the soundtrack to Quadrophenia, the film based on The Who’s 1973 rock opera. In 2019, star Leslie Ash told Gigwise that on set “it was always Green Onions that we were asked to dance to”.

Despite the simple versatility of its core riff, the song has not been widely sampled. The most notable example dates from 1996, when “That Girl” by Maxi Priest (feat Shaggy) used it as a base from which to pay tribute to “a gangsta kinda lover... MMMmm.”

As the Stax house band, Booker T & the MG’s played on many of the label’s classic hits for the likes of Otis Redding, Wilson Pickett and Sam & Dave. But Jones lost heart after Redding’s death in 1967 and the assassination of Martin Luther King in 1968. He left Memphis for California at the end of the decade.

In his memoir he expressed frustration at the way the MG’s were expected to embody an ideal of racial harmony.

“The MG’s did love each other,” he wrote. But “as we were held up more and more as an example to the world of how integration could work, it became more and more a veneer.”

The MGs of Baltimore, Ltd. Car club was established in 1977. The club represents over 150 members in the Metro Baltimore area. As the name implies, the club centers its activities around the preservation and enjoyment of the cars that bear the classic MG marque. The club is affiliated with the following national organizations: The North American MGA Register, The North American MGB Register, and The American MGB association. Internationally, the club is affiliated with the MG Car Club and The MG Owners Club. The club's activities include sponsorship of the nationally known "MGs on the Rocks" car show, a series of challenging (and FUN) historic car rallies, as well as numerous fun gatherings all through the year.

The 43rd Annual MGs on the Rocks!

Open to all British Marques

September 24, 2022

MGs of Baltimore, Ltd.

ABOUT US:

The MGs of Baltimore is open to all British Cars. We have preserved the MG Marque in Baltimore for over 45 years. We do this by hosting driving events, our annual show and parts market MGs on the Rocks, and providing technical training and assistance to our members.

Meet Others:

We have monthly meetings at Johnny Dee's Lounge at 7:30 the first Tuesday of each month where we plan events, hear about upcoming events and ones our members have participated in, there's also a tech session on British car repair and maintenance.

MGOB sponsors the annual SCCA national "Get the Dust Off" Rallye, the first Sunday in May. We have legendary get-togethers events including A Christmas Feast, Annual Chili Contest, and Summer Pool Party. (MGOB is actually a Food Club that likes British Cars) We also have multiple spontaneous social outings throughout the year. All this for $20 a year!
